

General use of networks and the internet

You may not use the service for the transmission of illegal material. The user agrees to refrain from sending or receiving any materials which may be deemed to be offensive, abusive, indecent, child pornography, defamatory, obscene, menacing or otherwise as prohibited by current and future law. The user agrees to refrain from sending or receiving any material which may be in breach of copyright, confidence, privacy or other rights.

You should be aware that the storage, distribution of or transmission of illegal materials may lead to investigation and possible prosecution by the authorities.

You must not send data to the internet using forged addresses or data which is deliberately designed to adversely affect remote machines (including but not limited to denial of service, ping storm, trojans, worms and viruses).

You must ensure that local PCs and network connected servers are not configured to allow open relay and must not participate in the sending of unsolicited commercial or bulk email including hosting or allowing the hosting of sites or information that is advertised from a third party network or supplier.

You are prohibited from running 'port scanning' or other software intended to probe, scan, test the vulnerability of or access remote systems or networks except in circumstances where the remote user has given express permission for this to be done.

You may not divulge your network passwords to third parties and should take all reasonable steps to ensure that such information remains confidential.

Email

Sending and receiving email involves the same responsibilities and approach as would be used when sending or receiving any other form of communication - written or printed mail, fax, telephone call etc. Most users fully understand what would be considered appropriate and acceptable when communicating with others and apply these considerations to their use of email. There are occasions when some users send mail or engage in online communication that others consider unacceptable - generally regarded as abuse by the online community.

If you find it difficult to determine what might be considered 'abuse' with online communication you should realise that, in general terms, anything that might be unacceptable, and possibly illegal, in other forms of communication will be equally unacceptable and possibly illegal online.

You should not send any emails likely to cause distress or any material which is offensive, indecent, obscene, menacing or in any way unlawful.

You must not use OneCell email services or network to send email to any user who does not wish to receive it.

You must not use OneCell email services or network to send unsolicited commercial email, in bulk (commonly known as 'spam') or individually.

You must not use OneCell email services or network with intent to deprive others of service.

You must not use false mail headers or alter the headers of mail messages in such a way as to conceal the identity of the sender.

You must not use any email address that you are not authorised to use.

You must ensure that any email servers connected to the OneCell network and operated by you are not configured to allow 'open relay'.

Customers who abuse the OneCell email service will be notified that their behaviour is unacceptable and may have their accounts suspended, terminated or blocked.

The Company reserves the right to restrict or block internet traffic to or from a Customer, without prior notification, in the event of a failure to abide by the published terms of the Acceptable Use Policy. This may include, but not exclusively, the transmission of unsolicited email or the presence of an open mail relay.

If a customer account or service is suspended or blocked due to abuse, then service may be restored at OneCell's sole discretion and generally will only be restored on receipt of a written assurance of future compliance with this policy.

Web usage

Web usage includes the use of web space provided with client accounts, web hosting on OneCell servers and the use of web services and space on customer collocated servers. OneCell cannot and does not proactively monitor content on any web space maintained by customers (whether customer space, web hosted or collocated services) and cannot and does not guarantee that such sites are free of illegal content or other materials that may be considered unacceptable.

You undertake sole responsibility for the content of web pages owned and or operated by you - whether on client pages, web hosted space or collocated servers - within the OneCell domain or other domains hosted within the OneCell network.

You undertake sole responsibility to ensure that all materials on any web site owned or operated by you contains material that you have created or have permission to use.

You undertake sole responsibility for any dispute involving Copyright or Intellectual Property Rights associated with your site or service.

You must not use your website or web service to promote or distribute any material or content that is illegal (under any current or future legislation). You should be aware that the internet is a global communications network and what may be legal locally may be illegal elsewhere and leave you liable to prosecution in another country.

OneCell may undertake investigation of content services if potential abuse is brought to its attention and reserves the right to remove any web page on our servers at any time and for any reason.